Greater Nottingham's sustainable transport system of buses, trams and trains provides a greener alternative to the car that can also save you time and money.

Replacing just one or two car journeys a week with a trip on the public transport network can make a difference to your environment by reducing CO2 emissions. Travelling by public transport often gets you to your destination quicker than by car, with direct bus, tram and train routes into the heart of the City.

What's more, you'll be saving wear and tear on your vehicle and can also take advantage of the many ticket offers available – see our bus, train or tram ticketing pages for details.

Park and Ride is another great way of making the most of the sustainable network, getting you part of the way by car, and allowing you easy access into the City centre by bus or by tram.
